PAPUA NEW GUINEA'S FINEST MILITARY UNITS TO PERFORM AT BIGGEST EVER ROYAL EDINBURGH MILITARY TATTOO IN AUSTRALIA

- PNG Military Band and newly created Sing Sing Group will appear at the ANZ Stadium in Sydney for four shows

The finest performers from Papua New Guinea's military bands, will arrive in Sydney this week for The Royal Edinburgh Military Tattoo's Australia return which takes place at the ANZ Stadium between 17-19 October.

The Papua New Guinea Defence Force (PNGDF) Military Band & Pipes and Drums and the Sing Sing Group (formerly PNGDF Manus Dancing Group) will assemble with more than 1,500 other international performers, including the UK, Switzerland and France, for the biggest-ever cast line up in the Tattoo's 69-year history.

Formed in 1952 by Pipe Major L. MacLennan from Perth, the PNG Military Band & Pipes and Drums have gone on to receive global recognition for its broad musical repertoire which has seen them perform to Her Majesty The Queen and Prince Philip, Duke of Edinburgh.

The Sing Sing Group was formed in July 2019 especially for the Edinburgh Tattoo's Sydney show. It comprises six drummers and 13 dancers who are currently serving with the PNGDF; wearing tribal beaded jewellery and dressed in dazzling, bold red, black and yellow traditional costumes, the group will beat the garamut wooden drum to bring multitudes of colour and energy to the stage.

The team from Papua New Guinea will join the other Pacific nations for an extraordinary 6-minute-performance entitled 'Our Ocean People' featuring the drums, percussion and dancers from each of the island groups - in total more than 350 performers from more than 7 Pacific nations.

Under the theme 'At All Points of the Compass', the show will take guests on a tour of the world, guiding them around 360 degrees of the atlas to tell the compelling tale of Australia's place in history and its links with allies and friends, including Papua New Guinea.

To celebrate this theme, the Australian show will take the audience on a circular tour around an imaginary compass rose with its centre at the dusty red heart of the continent - at Lambert Centre. For thousands of years, the indigenous people of Australia navigated their 'country' using 'songlines' - an oral tradition of routes travelled - and with this notion as inspiration, five 'song men' will guide the audience to the edge of traditional lands, welcoming each international group to perform in turn.

The concept reinforces the purpose of the Tattoo in helping bring people together, to better understand each other's cultures and ways of life to "arrive as strangers and leave as friends".

The Tattoo returns to Australia with production partners, the Michael Cassel Group, as part of its ambitious Strategy for Growth. Announced in 2018, the ambitious growth programme includes doubling its turnover to £20 million by 2025 as well as additional signposted overseas tours to Canada and China by 2021. Work is already underway with the business in regular conversations with the UK, Scottish and International Governments, local promoters and support networks.

Brigadier David Alfrey MBE, Chief Executive and Producer at the Tattoo, said: “We are proud and privileged to bring - in equal measure - the heritage and innovation of the Tattoo to our Australian audiences and are thrilled that Papua New Guinea are able to join the line-up. Not only do our nations have a wonderful shared history but also, we know well the richness of Papua New Guinean culture, music and the long connections with the United Kingdom and Australia. The military and cultural performers will perform alongside the other Pacific nations who are taking part. Above all though Papua New Guinea will make their own special impact across the span of the Show.”

“We return to Australia as part of a new period of growth for the Tattoo. This is an exciting step change for us reaching anew across the world, first to Australia, then over the next two years to China and North America. The Tattoo is all about bringing people together to reinforce relationships already made and making new friends for the future.”

Chief of the Defence Force, General Angus Campbell said he was pleased to see Australia once again hosting this world famous event and welcomed all participants to Australia.

“The largest ever Tattoo in Sydney will present an international cast of talented performers from around the world. It is a unique celebration of music and military tradition in a colourful display of music, dance and military precision.

“Participation in the Tattoo allows Australia to demonstrate the professional skills and high performance of our armed forces,” General Campbell said.

The Australian Defence Force (ADF) has provided a range of ceremonial and logistic support to the Royal Edinburgh Military Tattoo including more than 250 cast members, air and ground transport and co-ordination for participating nations.

“I am delighted that the ADF will once again be part of this world-class event,”
