NEW ZEALAND ACTS TO TAKE LEADING ROLE AT BIGGEST EVER ROYAL EDINBURGH MILITARY TATTOO IN AUSTRALIA

- Five of the country's most popular acts will appear at the ANZ Stadium in Sydney for four shows

Five of New Zealand's most premier acts will arrive in Sydney this week, as they assemble for The Royal Edinburgh Military Tattoo's showcase down under at the ANZ Stadium between 17-19 October.

Amongst the impressive line-up is the New Zealand Army Band; Lochiel Marching Drill Team; the Auckland Police Pipe Band; the Pipes and Drums of Christchurch City and Te Pikikōtuko O Ngāti Rongomai, a traditional Māori Kapa Haka group that hail from the shores of Lake Rotoiti.

The New Zealand Army Band will amaze audiences with their usual playful spirit, dressed in scarlet uniforms, as they perform hits including Circle of Life and other favourites. Their Sydney appearance follows a dazzling display at the Edinburgh Tattoo in Scotland's capital earlier this year where they were crowned winners of the Pooley Sword. The annual Pooley Sword tribute is voted by fellow cast members for one act they believe contributed the most both on and off the stage.

The prestigious Lochiel Marching Drill Team will bow-out of performing in Sydney, as the event marks their last-ever stage performance following the passing of their coach of 53 years, Colleen Pobar earlier this year. Led by Colleen's niece Nicole Adamson and her mum, Shona, the impressive troupe will showcase their world-renowned precision in drill marching, timed to the second, for their final fling.

The Auckland Police Band and Pipes and Drums of Christchurch will join the Massed Pipes and Drums for several roaring renditions throughout the 140minute show. Dressed in traditional Highland attire crafted out of the tartan design of King George VI, the Auckland band, which celebrates its 75th anniversary last year, will pay tribute to the heritage of one of the band's first members.

The groups will participate alongside more than 1,500 international performers from countries including the UK, Papua New Guinea and France, for the biggest-ever cast line up in the Tattoo's 69-year history.

Under the theme 'At All Points of the Compass', the show will take guests on a tour of the world, guiding them around 360 degrees of the atlas to tell the compelling tale of Australia's place in history and its links with allies and friends, including New Zealand.

To celebrate this theme, the Australian show will take the audience on a circular tour around an imaginary compass rose with its centre at the dusty red heart of the continent - at Lambert Centre. For thousands of years, the indigenous people of Australia navigated their 'country' using 'songlines' - an oral tradition of routes travelled - and with this notion as inspiration, five 'song men' will guide the audience to the edge of traditional lands, welcoming each international group to perform in turn.

The concept reinforces the purpose of the Tattoo in helping bring people together, to better understand each other's cultures and ways of life to "arrive as strangers and leave as friends".

The Tattoo returns to Australia with production partners, the Michael Cassel Group, as part of its ambitious Strategy for Growth. Announced in 2018, the ambitious growth programme includes doubling its turnover to £20 million by 2025 as well as additional signposted overseas tours to Canada and China by 2021. Work is already underway with the business in regular conversations with the UK, Scottish and International Governments, local promoters and support networks.

Brigadier David Alfrey MBE, Chief Executive and Producer at the Tattoo, said: "We are proud and privileged to bring - in equal measure - the heritage and innovation of the Tattoo to our Australian audiences and are thrilled that New Zealand are able to join the line-up. Not only do our nations have a wonderful shared history but also, we know well the richness of New Zealand culture, music and the long connections with the United Kingdom and Australia. The military and cultural performers will perform alongside the other countries and Pacific nations who are taking part. Above all though they will make their own special impact across the span of the Show."

"We return to Australia as part of a new period of growth for the Tattoo. This is an exciting step change for us reaching anew across the world, first to Australia, then over the next two years to China and North America. The Tattoo is all about bringing people together to reinforce relationships already made and making new friends for the future."

Chief of the Defence Force, General Angus Campbell said he was pleased to see Australia once again hosting this world famous event and welcomed all participants to Australia.

"The largest ever Tattoo in Sydney will present an international cast of talented performers from around the world. It is a unique celebration of music and military tradition in a colourful display of music, dance and military precision.

"Participation in the Tattoo allows Australia to demonstrate the professional skills and high performance of our armed forces," General Campbell said.

The Australian Defence Force (ADF) has provided a range of ceremonial and logistic support to the Royal Edinburgh Military Tattoo including more than 250 cast members, air and ground transport and co-ordination for participating nations.

"I am delighted that the ADF will once again be part of this world-class event,"
